“As Abraham was chosen by God from among the nations, so humans are chosen by God from among the multiplicity of life-forms to serve as priests of the cosmic temple, and to represent God’s purposes and will to their fellow organic co-heirs of God’s kingdom. Humans are the image of God, not by biological nature or right, but through election from among the animals by divine grace.

Joshua M. Moritz

Imago Dei Means:

- 1. God calls humans into a relationship with Him.
- 2. God has us be the representatives of God to the rest of creation in His name.
- 3. God has us be His stewards and care-takers of creation.

in a context in which materials are mentioned. Instead of suggesting manufacturing of matter out of nothing (as many have inferred in the past), this suggests that manufacture is not the issue. The lexical analysis suggests, instead, that the essence of the word that the text has chosen, bârâ', concerns bringing heaven and earth into existence by focusing on operation through organization and assignment of roles and functions."
